

IPC GUIDE TO REPORTING ON PARA ATHLETES

JANUARY 2021

1 DISABILITY AND IMPAIRMENT

In line with the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD), 'disability' is a preferred word along with the usage of the term 'impairment' to describe Para athletes.

The IPC chooses the first-person language, ie, addressing the athlete first and then his/her disability. Therefore, the right term encouraged by the IPC is 'athlete /person with disability'.

GENERAL RULES

When speaking, interviewing or socialising with a person or an athlete with disability, here are a few general rules to remember:

- Always identify the person first and then the disability, eg, 'an athlete with a disability' not a 'disabled athlete'. Sometimes, it may not be necessary or relevant to mention the disability, so do not feel obliged to do so. When it is relevant, just mention what the disability is and then move on.
- Avoid using emotional wording like tragic, afflicted, victim, or confined to a wheelchair. Emphasise the ability and not the limitation, by saying that someone 'uses a wheelchair' rather than 'is confined' or is 'wheelchair-bound'.
- Avoid portraying people with a disability who succeed as 'extraordinary' or 'superhuman'. For example, overstating the achievements of athletes with a disability inadvertently suggests the original expectations were not high.
- Portray the person as he/she is in real life. For example, a person with a disability might be an athlete but he/she may also be a parent, a civil engineer, a doctor, a business manager or a journalist.
- People do not want to be recipients of charity or pity. Remember that a person with a disability is not necessarily chronically sick or unhealthy.
- Act naturally and do not monitor every word and action. Do not be embarrassed if you use common expressions like 'see you later' (to a person with a visual impairment) or 'I'd better run along' (to someone who uses a wheelchair).
- When talking with a person who has a disability, speak directly to that person rather than a companion or interpreter.
- Do not forget that people with a disability may need your patience and sufficient time to act independently. Give the person extra time to speak if they are using a communication aid or have a learning disability.
- Ask persons with a disability to repeat themselves if you do not understand them.
- During one-on-one interviews, respect the person's personal space and remember that a wheelchair is part of a person's personal space.

- Do not assume that a person with a disability also has a hearing impairment or that his/her mental capacity is diminished in any way. Speak in a normal tone and do not use language that is condescending.

2 APPROPRIATE WORDS AND PHRASES

Words can project images that are inaccurate and may hurt a person. In the following you can find a list of preferred terminology and appropriate wording to use when referring to athletes or people with disability, in general.

Avoid	Use
Disabled athlete/person Handicapped athlete/person The Incorrect terms are either generalisations or derogatory and offensive.	Athlete Or (where a distinction needs to be made) Para athlete Or athlete(s) with disability person(s)/people with disability These terms refer to all athletes within the Paralympic Movement from grassroots to elite level. They are athletes first, so where possible, we should simply refer to them just as athletes. Place the athlete or person first rather than referring to his/her disability. Disability is preferred to impairment. However, the Paralympics are all about ability, not inability/ lack of inclusion or mobility restriction are often due to external factors that can be overcome.
The blind.	Athlete/Persons with a vision impairment and (vision impaired is also acceptable, especially to improve the flow of sentences). An athlete who has been classified as having a vision impairment.

The handicapped, The disabled The physically handicapped Person with a locomotor disability	Person with a physical disability/People with physical disabilities. A person who has been classified as having a physical disability, eg amputees, wheelchair users, people with cerebral palsy etc.
Normal athletes Calling able-bodied people 'normal' is derogatory to people with a disability who are equal to their able-bodied counterparts.	Able-bodied athletes
A paraplegic, paraplegics	A person with paraplegia
A quadriplegic, quadriplegics	A person with quadriplegia
A retard / the retarded	A person with an intellectual disability
Spastic	A person with cerebral palsy
Abnormal, subnormal, defective, deformed These are negative terms which imply failure to reach personal perfection	Specify the disability
Afflicted with Most people with an impairment do not see themselves as afflicted	Say the person has ... (the disability)

Confined to a wheelchair A wheelchair provides mobility and is not confining	Say uses a wheelchair
Cripple or crippled Invalid These words convey a negative image of a twisted ugly body.	Say with a physical disability
Disease (when used as equal to disability) Many disabilities, such as cerebral palsy and spinal injuries, are not caused by any illness or disease.	Say impairment/disability
Stumps This has the connotations that the person's limbs were cut off like a tree.	Say amputation
Suffers from, sufferer Person with a disability does not necessarily suffer.	Say is/has ... (a disability)
Victim People with an impairment are not necessarily victims and usually prefer not to be perceived as such.	Say is/has ... (a disability)
